The First Napoleon's Company Manuers.

People who take J. S. C. Abbott's view of the first Napoleon, may properly be asked to take a look at their hero when he was displaying his inbred gentlemantiness of character. It is curious, by the way, to note the very wide difference in this respect between the uncle and the nephew of his uncle—the latter not lacking a certain decided imagnanisity and kindness, the possession of which lends some additional color to the scandal about the Dutch Admiral and the entire lack of Napoleonic blood in the present Emperor of the French. The story of the uncle, now for the first time published, relates to a dinner at Dresien, at the meet-People who take J. S. C. Abbott's view of of the uncle, now for the first time published, relates to a dinner at Dressee, at the meeting of the Sovereigne, in 1812. The Emperor and Empress of Austria were present, and so, among others, wore the King of Prussia, the King of Saxony and Crown Prince (the late King) of Prussia. As the story is told by Varobageo, in the tenth volume of his diary, which has just appeared at Leipzig, Natosco, while at dinner, received some news, which seemed to trouble him, whereupon, in entire disregard of the Emoress of Austria, who was seated next to him, he leaned back in his seat, and yawned without concealment; indeed accompanied the yawn with a loud noise.

ed without concealment; indeed accompanied the yawn with a loud noise.

He then rose from the chair, and began walking up and down the room in a burried manner, the ladies and the sovereigns heartime awaiting his good pleasure. At last he stopped and called in a violent tone,

"Prince de Neufchael!" (Berthier, his chief-of-staff and general factobum). Berthier went to his master and received his orders. Next Napoleon called out in the same peremptory and insolent way,

"Roi de Saxe!" The King duly obeyed, and a few minutes' conversation having been held with him, he was summarily dismissed. After giving this proof that even his habit of conquering kings had not deprived him of an uneasy respect for kingship, though it had affected his manners unpleasantly, he walked over to the Crown Prince of Prussia, pinched his ear and remarked at the same time, over to the Crown Prince of Prussia, pinched his ear and remarked at the same time, "You reservelte your mother a good deal." The Prince was silent.

"Have you visited the fortress?" was Napoleon's next remark.

"No," said the Prince, shortly and disceptively; and in his version of the story, that was the end of it—except that all his relatives were angry with him because he would not say "Non Sire," but only "Non." According to Austrian accountt, however, Napolen angrily closed the convention by telling the Crown Prince, "Yous cies une bete"—a not unlikely conclusion, but one that would be 'more easily recollected by one's hederitary neighbors than by one's self.

The Court Dress Reform.

Daily Telegraph, Feb. 15.

Gentlemen who wait upon their sovereign are to have in future their choice of two com-plete dresses. They may wear at levées a dark-colored cloth dress coat, with dark-colored cloth diese cont with a standup collar embroidered in gold, a white waistcoat, and dark coloured cloth trousers, with a gold stripe down the seam; substituting for these last garments, on drawing room days,
"cloth breeches"—we use the Chamberlain's unaffected vernacular—and black or white silk hose. Or they may appear in a more subdued but richer and more dignified dress, consisting, for levees, of "a black silk velvet dresscoat, with gil, steel, or plain buttons, a white or black silk velvet waistcoat, black velvet trousers—did not Mr. Disraeli try black velvet trousers many years since? black velvet trousers—did not Mr. Disraeli try black velvet trousers many years since?—a black cocked het, and a gilt or steel hitted sword. At drawing rooms, black silk hose, shoes, and git buttons are to be worn. A tertum quid remains. The present, or we hope we may say the late. Court dress, will still be recognised at her Majesty's Court, the translate of the present of the to that if any ultra-conservatives in the mat-ter of chocolate coats, bag wigs, and "flow-er pot" waistcoat, linger in courtly circles er poi" waisteat, linger in courtly circles, they will be enabled to appear in the guise of Sir Anthony Absolute in the play:

Surely these changes should gratify all classes an' conditions of courtlers—from lord mayors and shortiffs to bonorable gentlemen who are asked to dine with the Speaker—from provincial aldermen who come up to St. James' with an address, to contractors for public buildings who are bidden to Buckingham Palace to be knighted. The dark-colored cloth dress coat, with its accessories will be a kind of uniform not unlike that worn by consols, and a uniform having somerhing military about it is ordinfally unobtrusive, yet picturesque. Two flunkeys hanging on behind a coach may be laughable objects; but five hundred flun-Jewelers and Silversmiths, laughable objects; but five hundred flunkoys, all clad alike, would form a band of "retainers," and, their hair-powder notwith standing, would look respectable. As for the salk velvet dress—we are glad the Chamber, lain insists on the genuine article, for there may be sordid souls shameless enough to go to Court in velveleen—we venture to predict that it will become the most widely patronised of all the three Court dresses.

Bones for Fruit Trees.—Bones co'lect in considerable quantities about every household, and in villages many have no use for them. They may be had for the gathering oftentimes, or for a small consideration. A tree-planter can make no better investment tree-planter can make no better investment of a lew dollars than to purchase these old bones, and after crushing them into inob picces, put a bushel or two into each border where a tree is set. They are all o an excelvited the set of the set cracking of pears. All the bones about the premises should be saved for the fruit trees.

The Fallure of Stone.—I believe, writes a correspondent of the Builder, if the decayed stones in a building were carefully examined a large majority would prove to be for held the state of the state of the believe. face-badded; yet some good judges tell us that in Portland, Bath, granite, and some others, it does not matter whether the stone fixed in work is face-bedded or not. I think the contrary might easily be proved, as stone laid on its natural bed, "with its teeth out" -to use a querry phrase—presents a greater resi tance to the effects of wind and weather than when laid in any other position. In addition to stone being laid on its natural bed, I think it ought to be well seasoned.

PRESERVATION OF FLOWERS — The followis a very simple way to keep flowers in a vase fresh for a long time: Pat a tablespoonful of powdered obarcool into the water which is to receive the flower-stalks. The charcoal will settle immediately on the bottom of the vase, and the water will remain liquid. This done it is not necessary to renew the water or the charcoal for several days. The flower-will keep their fresheess and their perfume, and will look and smell as fine as though just brought in from the garden. just brought in from the garden.

GOATS FOR MILK .- A correspondent of the GOATS FOR MILK,—A correspondent of the Boston Advertiser urges the use of the goat for milk by poor families or for small homesteads as highly economical as contrasted with a cow or cows. It will live on truck which would otherwise be wasted and give from two to four quart; of excellent milk aday nearly all the year round. This would afford a tolerable supply, of milk for an ordinary family at an expense scarce that of keeping a dog.

Doughnuts — One cup of sugar, two eggs. three teaspoonfulls of melical sevent milk, two teaspoonsul of cream tireter, one teaspoonful of solt, add a little nutmeg. Knead all together and fry in het lard.

Rolls.—Before cooking rolls let them raise an hour. Loaves, longer.

YEAST is made the same as sponge -boiling a handful of hops with the potatoes.

WILL BE KEPT OPEN.—The Sacramento Union says: The (Union Pacific) road will be kept clear if it has to be housed in for a thousand miles with timbers shipped from the cypress swamps of Louisiana.

A SERIOUS ACCIDENT, AND ITS CONSEQUENCES. A gentleman residing at Wortham, in Norfolk, named Balls, on returning from Harlestone Market, fell from his horse, and sustained so serious an illness in consequence, that all his hair came off. He was perfectly bald. His friend, the Rev. Mr. Daniel, offered him a wig as a temporary substitute; and in the meantime he tried very fortunately the effects of Rowlands' Macassar Oil. What was the consequence? Part of a bottle produced the regrowth of a thick and luxuriant head of hair, with (what the first or original growth had not) a beautiful tendency to curl. This is a very striking instance of efficacy from the fact not) a beautiful tendency to curl. This is a very striking instance of efficacy from the fact of the debility which preceded the restoration.

last fifteen years by Railway Conductors, Engineers, and Expressmen, the most exacting of watch-wearers, has thoroughly demonstrat ed the strength, steadiness, durability and accuracy of the Waltham Watch. To satisfy that class in all these respects, is to decide the question as to the real value of these timekeepers.

More than 400,000 of these watches are now speaking for themselves in the pockets of the people-a proof and a guarantee of their superiority over others.

The superior organization and great extent of the Company's Works at Waltham, enable them to produce watches at a price which ren ders competition futile, and those who buy any other watch merely pay from 25 to 50 per cent. more for their watches than is necessary.

We are now selling Waltham Watches at less prices in greenbacks, than the gold prices before the war. There is no other manufacture of any kind in the United States of which

These time-pieces combine every improve ment that a long experience has proved of real practical use. Having had the refusal of nearly every invention in watchmaking originating in this country, or in Europe, only those were finally adopted which severe testing by the most skilful artisans in our works, and long use on the part of the public, demonstrated to be essential to correct and enduring timekeeping

Among the many improvements we would particularize :

The invention and use of a centre-pinion of peculinr construction, to prevent damage to the train by the breakage of main springs, is original with the American Watch Company, who, having had the refusal of all other contrivances, adopted Fogg's Patent pinion as being the best and faultless.

Hardened and tempered hair-springs, now universally admitted by Watchmakers to be the best, are used in all grades of Waltham

All Waltham Watches have dust proof cap protecting the movement from dust, and lessening the necessity of the frequent cleaning naccessary in other watches,

Our new patent stem-winder, or keyless watch, is already a decided success and a great improvement on any stem-winding watch in the American market, and by far the cheapest watch of its quality now offered to the public.

To CALIFORNIANS and others living in ortions of the United States where watchmakers do not abound, watches with the above mentioned improvements which tend to insure accuracy, cleanliness, durability and conveni ence, must prove invaluable.

Every watch bearing the trade mark of Waltham, is guaranteed to be a horoughly reliable timekeeper.

To prevent imposition, buyers should invariably de nand a certificate of genuineness. The trade supplied by Messrs, R. B. Gray & Co., San Francisco, Cal., and generally for sale at retail by all respectable dealers.

CYCLES exist in the history of every nation and people, and who knows but we may be returning to the days of chivalry, when a guidon formed from a lady's neckribbon was esteemed more precious than a courtier's life. We can only judge from events; the Female Immigration resolutions were at one time threatened with the same fate as the Drawbacks' Bill, but on second thoughts (which they say are always the best) it was snatched from its impending doom. Well, according to the old fable toads were supposed to carry a gem in their heads; it is at least satisfactory to know that government, otherwise faulty, is gallant, and (our own weakness being in that direction) this fact will do much to sweeten the bitterness of our editorial ink when discussing the powers that be. We cannot, however, see the tendency of government in the right direction without applying our shoulder to the government stage coach in order, if possible, to force it in "the way it should go." We have from time to time shown with great elab. orateness that our unoccupied lands are boundless in extent and of the finest in quality; that our climate is the most delightful imaginable, particularly when compared with old England's, having all the mild characteristics of a southern clime, alternated with the breezy, bracing freshness of the north; that of all places on earth this is decidedly the place to which Englishmen should emigrate, not only as being adapted in the climate and nature of the soil, but as offering, at a certain result to their advantage. What, then, is the natural conclusion: that by importing families, especially where the heads are likely to seek agriculture as an occupation, we should best be achieving the object sought by the Female Immigration scheme. We should bring out the cultivators of our soil, who would benefit themselves and at the same time enrich the colony; and with them would come the young girls desired as female domestics, who would engage themselves in that capacity till their parents had secured their homestead, or until some lucky youngster had carried them off bound in the happy chains of wedlock, and so secure us more customers and an increasing fixed population. We agree in a measure with a correspondent who thinks if we brought out female sers wants that we could not prevail upon them to stay; the attractions of San Francisco and higher wages would be too much for their consistency. While admitting such a possibility, we do not go the whole length with the writer, because we don't think girls fresh from the old country would be so easily "beguiled from their homes." We do not anticipate the miner's nomadic habits being re-produced in our female domestics, but we think occasional temptation may produce such a result. To prevent this in the safest manner, is to bring out entire families, so that the ties of relationship will hold them to the country where they will make their homes. The amount granted for the scheme in relation to females only, is not large; bat a small addition to the sum would do much to accomplish the more extended and the wiser plan. The young girls that would come to us by this means, would not be exposed to a temptation to go elsewhere to secure a higher rate of wages. They would never leave the proper surveillance of their natural guardians. This is a very important consideration for the heads of families here, and one we think that should weigh heavily with them; for though we do not for a moment question the propriety of the young girle who may come to us under the conditions of the present scheme, still there exists the possibility of a freedom of thought not esteemed the best where children are likelp to come under its influence. By adopting the suggestion in relation to families, we secure a better class of popuwhose absence have brought all our mis-have come to this Colony for the most part are not those who think of remain-class we must displace by the importation of bona fide citizens, and the only way we can accomplish that, is by bringing out families who will remain as our farmers, our apprentices, our domestic servants and as British Columbians, in the true sense of the word, not according

Hyprophobia. - Deaths from hydrophobia all becoming alarmingly frequent in the Eastern States. A New York paper publishes the following affecting account of the circumstances attending the death recently of a prominent citizen who was bitten by a dog affected with the rabies :- "For three or four days before Mr. Ludlam was bitten the dog appeared unusually dull and sick. On the day and just before he was bitten the animal acted strangely, ran round in a circle ran against and killed a hen, returning in a circle attacked a favorite rooster but did not injure it. Mr. Ludlam than caught The dog after some difficulty, took it by the neck and struck it with the open hand on head. The dog then bit bim twice-on the ball of the right thumb and through the nail of the second finger of the left hand. The dog again ran, describing a circle as before Mr. Monfort followed the dog, tried to coax the animal to him, but was unable to catch him. Mr. M. then procured a rope with a slip noose, followed the dog to the barn, and while there the dog snapped at the stable man, seizing him by the hand but not draw. ing blood. Mr. M. succeeded then in securing him by the slip noose, and brought him to the door of the house, where the dog bit the rope so that it parted, and he again got away. In a few minutes the dog returned to the house and got under the lounge when Mr. Ludlam's little boy-two years old-reached under after him and the dog bit the child on the hand. The wound bled very freely, and the mother sucked it for a long while. The dog was then kicked out of the house and shot by Mr. Ludlam in anger, not because he thought the dog was rabid. The animal was a great favorite and was never known to bite any one under the ut-

DISAPPOINTED FORTUNE HUNTERS .- Some two years ago the town was electrified to learn that one John Reid, a decent sort of fellow who ran the ferry at the foot of Johnson street, had by the death of an aunt fallen heir to an estate in England estimated in value at from £40,000 to £100,000. Hastily disposing of his ferry privilege and landed property in this city, Reid set sail for England, where he found that his old aunt was surely dead, and that she had left a "power" of money. But there was just one little drawback to our whilom civizen s epping in and enjoying the fortune. The old lady had died without making a will, and instead of only one relative, in the parson of Reid, coming in to the property, a host of nephews, nieces, cousins, and other "connections" arose, and, as a matter of course, where so many interests were involved they clashed, and the case was carried into Chancery. The end of the affair and Reid's fortune was that, having spent all his ready cash on his way home, the disappointed man sold out his interest for £50 and shipped before the mast on a ship bound for the Cape of Good Hope. Reid's luck was little better than that of another Victorian who went to England a year or two ago to enjoy an income of £1000 per annum; but was astonished to find that the amount which, in the distance looked so large, dwindled down to the pitiful sum of £29 per annum.

THE CRICKET MATCH .- The wires remained up sufficiently long yesterday to equble us to get through a brief dispatch of the doings of the cricketers at San Francisco. The Match commenced on Thursday and the Californians scored 80 in their first innings to 66 scored by the British Columbians. The best playing on the side of the Califor nians was by Chisbolm, a former member of our club. Howard of Esquimalt scored the highest on either side-18. The second innings commenced the same evening. Upon the fall of the third wicket, the playing appears to have ceased for the day-the Californians having scored 28, with 7 wickets to go down. The result is not discouraging, and we should not be surprised it we learned to-day that our side came off victoricus in the second innings. There was considerable betting in town yesterday as to the result.

DEATH OF MR. JAMES HEPBURN .- The death of Mr. James Hepburn, of pneumonia, occurred yesterday at the residence of A. F. Main, Esq. Deceased was a native of Scotland, aged 58 years. He was educated as a barrister and was called to the English bar; but in early lite he contracted a taste for scientific pursuits, which he followed as a pastime with great assiduity. Mr. Hepburn came to the Pacific Coast a number of years ago, and resided at San Francisco, where he owns considerable property. The deceased gentleman has resided some years in this city, and was highly esteemed for his many good qualities. The funeral will take place at 2 o'clock this afternoon from Mr. Main's

EDITOR BRITISH COLONIST:—Your correspondent "Subscriber" says that Protestant English servants are in great demand at San Francisco, and can get first-class places there in a few hours after applying.

THE decorations of the Queen's robing-room, in the Hous's of Parliament, Westminster, are now completed. This Chamber, although it has been erected more than twenty years, has never, to the slightest extent, been years, has never, to the slightest extent, been used. As it now is, however, we have no doubt, the public would be glad to be admitted to view Dyce's pictures from the Arthurian legends, which are not only fine works in thems lves, but peculiarly interesting as forming the largest series of pure fractors in this country, and, with the exception of one or two comparatively small works by Mossa Madox Brown and Cave Thomas, the sole examples of art, in that mede of painting Madox Brown and Cave I nomes, the some examples of art in that mode of painting which are not more or less injured. LADY BYRON AND HER HUSBAND .- She loved him to the last with a love which it was not in his own power to destroy. She gloried in his fame, and she would not ingloried in 114 lame, and see would not interfere between him and the public who adored him, any more than she would admit the public to judge between him and her. As we have said, her lave endured to the last. It was her fortune which gave him the means of pursuing his mode of life abroad. He spent the utmost shilling of her property that the law gave him while he light away from her avery lived; and he left away from her every shilling that he could deprive her of by his will; and what the course of life was, which he thus supported, he himself has left on record. Yet after all this, the interview which she had with his servant after his death shows what a depth of passion lay concealed under the calm surface of her It will be remembered that when Byron knew himself to be dying he called to Byron knew himself to be dying he called to his man Fletcher, and desired him to "go to Lady Byron, and" * * Here his utterance became unintelligible, till he said, "You will tell her this;" and Fletcher was obliged to reply, "I have not heard one splable that you have been saying." [London Correspondence New York Times.] BRIBERY AND CORRUPTION.

The new Bribary Act continues to work to the satisfaction of every one except the sinners who fall under its chastening provisions. The Judges now decide a petition with a quickness, an impartiality, and a due regard for all the facts, such as could not be attained under the old plan of trying such cases before a Parliamentary Committee. The Judges thoroughly dislike the work, and one of them, the Baron Martin, complained bitterly of having to do it the other day. But Preliminary Notice. they do it so well that no one sympathises with them. Already a rather large sprinkling of members have been deprived of their seats, and others who were petitioned against have been adjudged innocent of the corrupt practices imputed to them. Whenever it has been shown that a clear intention existed to bribe or unduly influence electors the member has been unseated. It has not been necessary to show that the member was cognizant of these efforts in his behalf. If any of his agents bribed or used intimidation the candidate was held responsible. This, of course, must necessarily render candidates very cautions about employing agents in future. It will not do to send men about a town canvassing for votes and then to pretend that acted on their own responsibility. If they do wrong the men whom they will suffer for it. The votes and then to pretend that they acted on their own responsibility. If Judges soon see through all the dodges which may be adopted to thwart the inquiry, and it is no use for counsel to try to throw dust in their eyes. This comes of doing away with the jury. California, second innings:—Kohler, 7; Fisher, 3; Christianson, 3; byes, 11; When I saw him last your sitting hour after hour, defending its provisions and frustrating all sorts of devices to bring about the rain of his scheme, it seemed to me that the "earnest men" of the House could not very well work harder in any cause which they believed to be goed. If the bill does not in the end put down bribery altogether, it will make it a very danger-ous thing to indulge in it. Men may be willing to pay £10,000 tr a seat in the House of Commons, but they want to be sure that the honor will not be snatched from them in less than eight
